

by previous usage in matter of payment of tuition. All bills should be made for one term - half year - and settled before student enters upon the work of that term. And only in case of protracted sickness or unavoidable absence should any rebate be made.

This would avoid all perplexity and partiality and would from the ~~start~~ enlist a degree of interest on the part of halting student, to be secured in no other way.

III Ministerial Students - The question of Beneficent aid to Students for the Ministry - the amount, method and conditions that will best conduce to the development of a manly, godly clergy is one every where regarded with a degree of perplexity. There is here no time for a broad discussion of it. My own view is that it is a question properly belonging to the Board of Christian Education and not to the University Board.

For the present; however I suggest that young men properly recommended by the Churches of which they are members shall be permitted to settle their bills for tuition by giving to this Board their personal obligations for the amount of the same payable with out interest ten years after date unless the person making the note shall in the mean time have been for three years engaged in the work of the gospel ministry and regularly accredited as such.

In my judgment some such arrangement would do much to give dignity to the coming ministry.

By previous usage in matter of payment of tuition. All bills should be made for one term-half year-and settled before student enters up on the work of that term, and only in case of protracted sickness on unavoidable absence should any rebate be made. This would all perplexity and partiality and would from the start enlist a degree of interests on the part of halting student, to be secured in no other way.

III xxxxxxxxx Students – The question of beneficiary aid to students for the ministry. The amount method and conditions that will best conduce to the development of a monly, godly, xxxxx is one every where regarded with a degree of perplexity. There is here no time for a broad discussion of is my own view is that it is a question property belonging to the Board of Christian Education and vote to the University Board.

For the present; however I suggest that young men property recommended by the churches of which they are members shall be permitted to settle their bills for tuition by giving to this Board their personal obligation for the amount of the same, payable with out interests ten years after date unders the person making the note shall in the meantime have been for three years engaged in the work of the gospel ministry and regularly accudited as such. In my judgment some such arrangement would do much to give dignity, to coming ministry.