The seventeenth bi-annual convention is now in the archives of history. Those of us who had the privilege of attending this convention were privileged to feast our eyes upon a very great Student Union building in Stillwater, Oklahoma. There are probably no words in the English language to adequately express our appreciation to the A and M College for the privilege of using this great building.

Also along with this expression of appreciation, we must include Harry Anderson and all the other local personalities who were instrumental in adding to our appreciation for the fine things which we all found in connection with A and M College and the hospitality of that section of the state which is identified as Stillwater, Oklahoma. Of course, along with this, we include the province of Lower Mississippi.

One cannot express appreciation for a fine convention without recognizing the splendid work of all the members of the committees. To name the individuals would require too much space and time.

The convention represents the greatest success of Pi Kappa Delta, in that, this meeting saw the greatest chapter attendance with the greatest number of states represented in any previous convention. It is a pleasure to welcome the new chapters to our organization. It is gratifying to know that not all the delegates were required to shovel snow in order to be in attendance, but it is also gratifying to know delegates are willing to pay what it costs to share in a national convention.

We must now turn our attention in the direction of the next convention which will be held in 1953. We must all pledge our support to Roy Mahaffey as president and to the committees which he will have to help him uphold the standards of Pi Kappa Delta in a bi-annual convention.

Flight To Hawaii

CARL DAVIS, Colorado A & M

The thrill of a lifetime was afforded two Colorado A & M College debaters in March when they represented the College in a series of debates in the Hawaiian Islands, under the auspices of the University of Hawaii.

Kenneth Iverson of Adams City, Colorado, and Rod Wilson of Fort Morgan, Colorado, were selected by the A & M debate club to participate in the week-long series in the land of flowers.

The Coloradoans went from Fort Collins to San Francisco by train. Arriving in the Golden Gate City on Sunday morning they spent the day sightseeing and resting. That evening they boarded a plane which landed them in Honolulu a scant 9 hours later.

At the Honolulu airport they were greeted by a bevy of hula dancers and by Wayne O. Fox, professor of speech at the University of Hawaii.

The debate series started shortly thereafter at the University. The topic for the first debate was "Resolved: That Hawaii should become a commonwealth." The Coloradoans took the affirmative while Muneto Yamanaka and Wildred Lee spoke on the negative. The mainlanders won this verbal tussle and Wilson was chosen as the most effective speaker of the debate.

Following the debate at the University and a brief look at Honolulu's night life, Iverson and Wilson accompanied by Mr. Fox and Stanley Reynolds and Wilfred Lee from the University of Hawaii flew to the neighboring island of Muni for a series of informal debates before high school audiences.

The first one was held at Baldwin high school before a record audience of more than 1,200 students. This was just an exhibition and no winner was determined.

Immediately following this they put on another exhibition at St. Anthony's high school with an audience of 700 in attendance. Later that afternoon Iverson and Wilson were guests at a radio station where they recorded a broadcast which was played that evening.

An interesting sidelight of the trip to Maui was the torrential rain which fell during the Coloradoans' visit. More than 11.1 inches fell in a 10 hour period.

The following day (Wednesday) an exhibition debate was held for the speech department of Maui high school followed by another exhibition at Lahainaluna school, one of the few self-supporting schools in the world.

Reception of Colorado Debaters

Their tour of Maui ended, the boys returned to Honolulu where they took part in an exhibition Thursday as part of the Pacific speech festival. The University was represented by Elaine Ah Mai and Etsuo Shigezawa. The topic was "Resolved: That the United States should limit its defense commitments to the Western hemisphere."

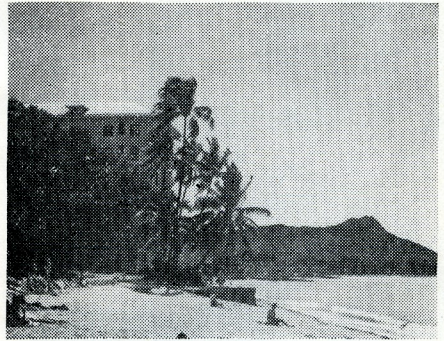

Following the festival the visitors were treated to a performance of a Japanese play and a tour of Waikiki.

Friday morning they were again treated to a tour of Honolulu and they made a recording for one of the Honolulu broadcasting stations. That afternoon a debate was held for Honolulu high school students with Lilly Miyamoto and Charles Char representing the U. of H. The topic was the defense question.

The final debate of the series was held Friday night on the commonwealth question. Masaru Funai and Shunichi Kimura were Hawaii's representatives on this topic. The Hawaiians were declared winners in this meet. Masaru and Shunichi are at present on a tour of the mainland.

Following the strenuous but enjoyable series Iverson and Wilson spent Friday night and Saturday visiting friends, shopping and swimming. They were the houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Cummings, parents of one of their fellow students at Colorado A & M.

Sunday morning they were given a big send-off at the Honolulu airport and were once more winging their way across the blue Pacific. After spending a day in San Francisco they boarded a train for the last lap of their journey.

The tired and weary travelers were full of praise for the hospitality of Hawaii, the friendly people, the industrious students at the University, the excellent highways on the Islands, the up-to-date high schools housed in splendid buildings, and the magnificent scenery set in a perfect climate.

Looking back on their glorious week in the Paradise of the Pacific, Iverson and Wilson hope that other members of Pi Kappa Delta will sometime be greeted with Aloha for a debate adventure such as theirs.

No arguing here
