

Writes a Prize Poem

Ethiel Morris Haley, '27, won the Kansas Authors club prize for the best poetry submitted in the 1938 contest which was open to all residents — present and former. We will let the verses speak for themselves:

Insurance

Today has been a shining silver bowl

Heaped with bright bits of laughter, love and song.

With this rich store of joy here on my shelf

Tomorrow's sorrow will not last too long.

Today has been a scarlet, singing bird

That wove gay melodies for me to keep;

This lilting song outside my window means

Tomorrow's pain will never go too deep.

Today has been a flaming, golden light

Whose glow still lingers when the day has gone;

Secure in its soft radiance, I know

Tomorrow's night will always find a dawn.
