

AS we go in and out before our professors this school year, many of us older ones, those who have attended before, are led to think of one of our instructors, Prof. Dietrich, to whom we recited in times gone by. But this year he does not meet with us in chapel, nor does he appear before us in the recitation. We all cannot but miss Prof. Dietrich in our class work for he was interested in his and in our work; in fact he was one among us, helping and assisting us in every way possible, and so we all came to regard him with great respect and esteem.

Prof. Dietrich is now engaged in the legal profession, in the state of Idaho. With one consent the students of Ottawa University send him their best wishes of success in his new profession. Knowing and remembering what great patience he possessed toward us in our sometimes ill-gotten lessons, and thinking of how much benefit we have received from his instruction, we all, with one accord, wish him speedy and true advancement, and good fortune in studying and becoming master of the intricate and difficult problems of law.
