

A Good Move

Prof. Foster has extended an invitation to the students taking work in his department to meet with him on any Wednesday evening for a social hour in order to get away from the monotonous routine of school work. By doing this Prof. Foster has met a long-felt want of the students. There are many times when a student becomes nervous and tired of school work and if he can apply his mind to something else for a short time it is a great relief to him. There is no better way of securing this relief than by spending an hour in pleasant conversation in an informal way and Prof. Foster's invitation was gladly welcomed by all the students in his department.