
NEW ENGLISH CLASSES.

Prof. Nichols May Teach Public Address and Possibly Journalism.

If the necessary number of persons desire to study oratory, debating and other forms of public address next semester, Prof. Nichols will conduct a class of two hours per week. He wants about sixteen for the class.

This is following out Prof. Nichols' plan to train up some persons for the local oratorical contest which may be held before the commencement week exercises close. It is hoped the requisite number will join the class and guarantee some warm competition in the contest to choose Ottawa's orator for 1911.

Prof. Nichols is also considering a class of one hour per week, with assignment work, in journalism. It is hoped to bring all the Campus reporters into this class.
