

"Transposing" means, in music, moving to another key. It can mean moving to another medium, as Jesus sometimes tells a story about a word-root [e.g., L.15: the prodigal "turns back" home, the root of Heb. t<sup>e</sup>shuvah, "repentance"]; or, as here, moving from a quotation, viz. Karl Marx's badmouthing of religion as "the opiate of the people," to a drawing of a pain-killer bottle. Can you think of some more transpositions, in communicating truth to yourself and others?
