

ARC BIBLIOGRAPHY FOR PRAYER AND MEDITATION FOR POST-MODERN MAN...Willis F. Elliott, 1971

Relearning and learning to pray, now, must be an Abrahamic pilgrimage into the future. But it will be the poorer and the weaker if not informed and inspired by pilgrimage into prayer's past. I therefore make no apology for the presence, here, of some too-dusty classics of the interior life--especially not for those that have informed and inspired me....Library numbers are of NYTS Library, which is open at the times posted near the building receptionist (first floor). I've added some others, chiefly my own --and keyed them so I know in which of my libraries each is, in case--not being able to find it elsewhere--you might want to borrow [for 1 week] mine....Bring to class whatever you've found most helpful, and make a pitch for it in hope we'll add it to our list and maybe our shelves and perhaps even our hearts. [Unalphabetic in letters.] A tip: NYTS Library contains on prayer hundreds of books I've not listed here. Note here the first three digits of books numbers, then broose in that section of the card-catalog and/or of the shelves....Most books in this list are paperback (many with list price quoted); when no price given, normally the term "paperback" is added....In NYTS Library, see also "Meditation" (though some of that section are listed here) and "Prayer Books" (under those for whom intended: "Children," "Family," etc.).
