LARGE CURRICULUM IN SUMMER SCHOOL

THREE GUEST PROFESSORS SECURED FOR SESSION

Tuition Reduced from $5.00 to $4.00 per Hour; Many Inquiries Received by Dean Wilson

One of the largest summer curricula offered at Ottawa University is being planned by Dr. W. B. Wilson, dean of the summer school. The faculty has been arranged for and an unusually large number of prospective students have inquired about the summer session, which opens June 2 and lasts for eight weeks.

Besides the regular instructors in the departments of biology, mathematics, history, English, modern languages, Latin, economics, sociology, dramatics, psychology and music there will be three guest professors.

George E. Swift, superintendent of schools at Holton will teach several courses in the education department. He finished the work of the late Superintendent A. F. Senter of the Ottawa schools last summer and proved to be very popular with the O. U. students.

Miss Helen Heaston, a graduate of O. U. in 1929, will teach physical education for women and also classes in playground supervision open to both men and women.

Miss Helen Heaston, a graduate of the department of music of the University of Kansas, will teach public school music. She comes to the session with a good recommendation from her school, being one of the outstanding students of the O. U. music department.

Dr. Wilson is arranging for lectures and concerts to be presented during the session and says that at least one of the outstanding students of the O. U. chapel will give an O. U. chapel service.

Josephine Home Again After Year's Visit To The Home Of The Wildcat

Josephine is home again! Somewhat the worse for wear, it is true; but nevertheless, she is home. Josephine, for the benefit of those who are not acquainted with her, is, or was, a fine skeleton of an Indian woman, that has been in use in the anatomy department for a number of years.

Last spring just before the O. U. Baker track meet. Josephine disappeared from her customary corner in Prof. Martha Stultz's office. The window of the second story room was open indicating that someone had entered by means of a ladder keeping the beautiful but partially toothless damsel.

Later investigation revealed, however, that it was an "inside job." This theory was confirmed when word came from Baker that Josephine had been the victim of a lynching, and her bones were being kept in the lab on the Baker campus. The populace of that lovely little village awoke all night.

To make matters worse, a number of signs indicating no uncertain terms that athletes at Baker were not what they once were.

The next day Coach Brettall's track team came down to Ottawa and proceeded to mop up on the Braves, due in no small part to the loss of the Indian ancestors of the university.

As Josephine was valued at more than $100, the university authorities tried to make her return to her home.

TRUSTEES DISCUSS DEFICIT IN BUDGET

TO SECURE REALLOCATION OF GIFTS WHERE POSSIBLE

Appeal To Kansas Baptist Convention For More Funds Next Year For University

The Ottawa University board of trustees met Tuesday, April 23, in a long session in which the present financial situation was delved into thoroughly. One of the big decisions of the day was to secure voluntary reallocation of gifts, if possible, from the endowment fund to the operating account and thereby take care of the deficit of this year.

The other important move was to operate on a balanced budget or cash basis next year. Other minor decisions concerned plans for the presentation of the appeal to the Kansas Baptist state convention for funds next year, the appointment of a nominating committee and other routine matters. Election of trustees to fill expired terms will take place at the meeting commencement week.

The present deficit for the current year will be about $20,000 unless steps are taken to meet it. The guarantee campaign has secured thus far only $5,000. The legality of a voluntary transfer of certain gifts in the endowment fund to the operating expense fund is now being probed into by a committee made up of Arthur Willis, Attorney Ben Bowers and Fred F. Martin. In the event that such transfer is legal certain donors will be asked to reallocate gifts from the endowment fund to the current expense fund. Not more than $15,000 would be taken from the endowment fund.

With the balanced budget or cash basis plan for next year the university officials are hopeful they will have a surplus.
Received a special issue of "The Pine," publication of the Arizona State Teachers' College, advertising their summer school session. For 4 pages nothing struck our eyes but the beauty of the school, the records of the various departments. Flowery adjectives proclaimed the perfect school. But, alas, consistency could not be. The editor chose this issue to write a seething, burning editorial lamenting the condition of the walks on the campus. Not perfect, after all.

Guess we'll go to the show again. J. Harris says it is no good.

We went to Lawrence to the music contest not so long ago, and we expected at any time to see both come bounding across the stage to the self-rendered strains of his theme song "Look Down, Look Down, That Lonesome Road."

The paper tells us that someone stole 114 jig saw puzzles in Kansas City. Should we ever turn thief, we will always examine our prospective loot.

You'll pardon us if we indulge in a bit of sentimentalism, but it's gone — our truck. And how we miss it. It's going to be hard on a lot of us. Just think — no more picnics — no more football trips — no more hauling — no more substituting on the West Side Bus Line. - - - ! Some people think a truck is just for work but let us tell you that they make a good pleasure car. We that nothing of taking our girl riding or to show in our truck. But no more. It's gone — our truck.

And now J. P. Harris comes out with the statement that he does not believe that a certain brand of mayonnaise will make a woman's limbs shapely! - - - Why Mr. Harris!

Just thinking — "In the spring a young man's fancy turns to . . . . What's that Mom?—Ah-h - - I'm goin' to mow that yard right away . . . . BOB.

"Out All Night" Friday and Saturday
The popularity of Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts as a comedy team has increased so rapidly, that immediately after the showing of their last picture, "They Just Had to Get Married," Universal decided to star them in another hilarious farce. In "Out All Night," Summerville is the bridegroom who takes a checkerboard on his honeymoon. A rarity, but the board comes in handy when ZaSu and Slim are forced to set up all night on the lawn of their new home. They are given a warm welcome by the neighbors, who are captivated by their charm and good looks. The village is buzzing with excitement as the couple arrives, and the streets are lined with people who want to catch a glimpse of the newlyweds. It is a scene that is sure to be remembered for years to come.

HATS OFF TO CAPT. WAGG

Ottawa University is experiencing one of the most successful track seasons in its history—three victories in duals and second in a quadrangular being the record so far.

Good coaching and several outstanding track men are in a large measure responsible for this successful team. Our hats, however are off to Delbert Wagg, one of the most energetic and best liked track captains Ottawa University has ever known.

He has “talked up” track so much this year that the Braves are able to enter from three to six better than average men in each event, larger crowds are attending the meets and the whole school and town has taken an interest seldom shown in this school before. For the first time in many years the Kansas Conference Champion Baker team was defeated by the Braves.

All of these successes came in spite of the discouraging outlook at the first of the season, with only three letter men reporting for track. Every person in the school and town has taken interest in Capt. Wagg, for the splendid success his team has had this year.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

That Noel Coward, author of the Fox Film “Cavalade,” is but 32 years of age.

There are 150 speaking parts in the Fox Film production of Noel Coward’s “Cavalade.”

That 25,000 modern costumes were worn by principals and the thousands of extras in Noel Coward’s “Cavalade” as produced by Fox Films.

That two ocean liners were used in the production of Noel Coward’s “Cavalade.”

That the train that is bearing them to Niagara Falls on their ‘honey’ trip is operated by Kat’s "Cavalade" Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The long-awaited Fox Film production of Noel Coward’s “Cavalade” makes its local opening at the Strand Sunday of next week. The picture will play 4 days. "Cavalade" the story of how world events affect the home and the family, has swept the country as a successful movie. The scope of the story covers the period from the present day, and the absorbing tale is set against a vivid background of historical happenings during that time.

The picture presents a terrific indictment against those responsible for the present muddled state of world affairs, but ends on a high note of gallant optimism that will all go well if we carry on with courage and faith.

A wonderful cast is headed by Deana Wynward, famous English actress, Clive Brook, Herbert Mundin, Una O’Connor and Beryl Mercer.

"Elmer The Great" Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Joe E. Brown, the comedian whose mouth has made him a leading box office star, brings his latest hit, "Elmer The Great," to the Strand as the closing picture of next week.

The story, written by Ring Lardner and George M. Cohen, was a comedy hit on the stage and the on-screen effect of its success was so great that the picture was made.

The plot concerns a small-town boy who becomes the champion bateman of the big league. He is also the champion eater and long time sleeper. He becomes enchanted in a love affair that nearly loses the world sries for his team.

Brown is well cast as "Elmer" and is given good support by Frank Morgan, Patricia Ellis, Preston S. Foster, and Claire Dodd.

Tauy Jones And Ottawa University

From a paper read by Dr. M. L. Ward before the Franklin County Teachers, January 18, 1913 and from an article in the Topeka Capital, June 11, 1922

Nearly everyone concerned with Ottawa University is familiar with the story of Tauy Jones and how he persuaded the Baptists of Kansas to found a university at Ottawa. Some of the following article are not quite so facts of his life contained in the well known however.

Tauy Jones, "the noble Indian who came to the prairies of the west," was born in 1800. He was a Chippewa Indian but not full blood. He attended Colgate University for several years and then taught in Kentucky before coming to Kansas. As the missionary, Jotham Meeker, who mentions Mr. and Mrs. Jones in his diary, they probably located on the place later known as the Woodlief farm, in the late 40's or early 50's.

The maiden name of Mrs. Jones was Jane Kelly. She was born in Maine and came to Kansas as a mis-

H. Woodlief, who bought the Jones farm, gave the yoke to Ottawa University and it is now in the university museum in Tauy Jones hall.

Following is a quotation from Dr. Ward's article: "Like many others who have built fine houses, they did not long enjoy living in it. Mr. Jones died in 1872. At the time it seemed premature. He had an attack of the dysentery. He would not consent to have a physician called. He was sick several days before any of his friends in town learned of it. Deacon Holt and I went out there and cared for him the night before he died. He was very weak and wholly indifferent.

The exposure of that night's work gave me a case of typhoid fever which brought me very low."

"John Tecumseh Jones was indeed a fine gentleman. He had a kind heart and a generous nature. He was respected and esteemed by his country neighbors. He had a wide vision and large hopes in connection with his race and his country. Both himself and wife planned great things for their people."

She sent a letter to Manhattan to Young. To Amar, the tissue, by the way.

When Miss Brown started to wash the dishes after the Y. W. W. dinner Sunday, she couldn't find her dish-rag. She searched and searched but found it in the coffee. Cleared it to make the coffee, thinking it was the flour sack she had that morning.

She should make up her mind about her face. It's Miles D. or Prentiss H. Miles Sunday afternoon, but she was Sunday night.

By Betty and Cannon went down the river on the ford on Main Street Saturday afternoon. The cottage coming to.

John T. Jones

Torsionary to the Delaware Indians and was associated with J. G. Pratt, and Miss Elizabeth Morse in mission work near what is now Edwardsville, Kansas. She idealized the Indians and identified herself with the race, and yet she retained her New England ideas of thrift and order. Dr. Whitt says that he once heard her state that as a housekeeper, her life had been a long, fierce struggle with dirt.

As their home was on the main road from Fort Scott northward, they often entertained travelers, many of them prominent characters of the time. One guest of honor was none other than President Lincoln, who slept in the east room on the second floor. Horace Greeley was another prominent guest to occupy the same room. John Brown more than once stopped over night with them.

The Jones family was threatened by the pro-slavery element and finally their home was raided one night by bushwhackers. At the first sound of their approach, Mr. Jones rushed from his bed into a cornfield just north of the house, and escaped. The ruffians broke into the house and not finding Mr. Jones, they ransacked and plundered, but offered no personal violence to Mrs. Jones. They dragged their hired man from his bed, slashed his throat and tumbled him over the bank into the shallow water of the creek. This revived him and he survived. Mrs. Jones attempted to save a couple of small bags of coin by throwing a shawl over her shoulders and placing them one under each arm. Fearing that they might be taken from her, she dropped each one in places at some distance from the house. But she was not successful in her attempt to save the money.

They presented a claim to the government for their house which was burned down by the raiders, and about the same time began the erection of the stone mansion which is still standing. Dr. Ward says that when he first saw it, a peach tree had grown up in the open cellar and fruited, while their claim was pending. The new house was completed in about 1870. The house was built of solid cut stone, which was hauled from Fort Scott by ox teams. All of the stone in the house as well as that in the first university building was cut by the father of Dean Emeritus, later county clerk of Franklin County. Dean was a boy at the time and helped his father. He died two or three years ago. One of the ox yokes worn by the oxen while hauling the stone is still in existence. Mr.

Wildcats Hope for Another Victory

By VINCENT ODOM, Baker Correspondent

A fighting, scrapping, battle thirsty band of Wildcats invades Ottawa tonight, aching to test their claws on the Ottawa Braves. The Liston crew is out for blood in this traditional clash.

The Orangemen opened up their season against the powerful Creighton team at Omaha, Nebraska. Outweighed fifteen pounds to a man, they put up a losing fight and went down 26 to 7. The Creighton team got off to an early lead by scoring in the first five minutes of play. The touchdown was made by the completion of a twenty-five yard pass over the goal line.

The second quarter found the Blue Jays running wild over the green Baker team which could not seem to get hold of itself. However, this stanza saw the Omaha team making its last score and awakening of the Wildcats.

The Bakerites uncorked a passing attack which started them off on a march down the field. The aerial combination was formed by Stock and Cookson. A steady series of gains resulted from this and it finally ended with a touchdown for Baker.

Returning to Kansas for their second game, the Wildcats journeyed to the Washburn bowl in Topeka. Here again the inexperienced Baker eleven went down to defeat. The score was 18 to 0.

The Baker team, however, showed surprising power in its defeat and continually carried the battle to the Washburn team. Costly fumbles featured the Baker play and two sterling scoring chances were lost through this football nemesis.

In this game, the Ichabods showed clearly why they won the Central conference championship last year and why they are doped to repeat this year. Their powerhouse tactics were evident and their backfield demonstrated its unusual ability.

The third game found Baker defending its honor on its own field against C. of E. This hard-fought contest ended with Baker scoring a touchdown in the final quarter to win 6 to 0.

Although the scoring was low, the Baker team outclassed the Emporia eleven with its fast charging line. Both teams, however, lack scoring punch and did not seem able to put across scores with their plays.

The Baker score came in the final quarter when Pike, Baker defensive back, snatched a C. of E. pass from the lips of the receiver and raced off down the field behind his interference to score and a 45-yard run.

C. of E. then loosened its passing attack and threatened to score, only to have a long pass over the goal line knocked down and the game end with the ball in Baker’s possession.

The McPherson Bulldogs were the first conference foe of the Wildcats. It was an erratic contest but finally ended with Baker coming out on top and winning 6 to 0.

In this game, the Baker line greatly outgained the McPherson forward wall but could not make use of its advantage. Four times in the first period the Orangemen pushed the ball within the 10-yard line, only to find themselves getting over-anxious and losing the ball before they could push the ball over for a score. The Baker goal came as a result of the featured Cookson-Stock combination with Cookson receiving the pass and racing over the goal line.

Returning home again, the Liston crew faced the Bethany Swedes and its second conference encounter. The Carlson coached team took advantage of an early break and scored (Continued on Page 15)

WHEN BRAVE AND WILDCAT MEET

One occasion that is looked forward to from year to year is the Brave-Wildcat fracas. A keen spirit of rivalry has developed that tends to lend added zest and pep to this annual affair.

It is commonly said that anything can happen in a Baker-Ottawa encounter. Pre-game dope means little or nothing with this game.

Ottawa and Baker Universities have always been friendly enemies. The majority of the games are close as far as score is concerned. Baker has a decided edge in the number of victories. Ottawa defeated Baker five years ago and since then have not been able to turn the trick.

The reader has, no doubt, already gained the idea of the intense rivalry between the Wildcat and the Brave. The height of the season for either team in the defeat of the other.

Coach Liston brings his snapping, snarling charges here with nothing but victory in mind. Coach Errickson's Braves are on the warpath, and nothing but Wildcat meat will appease their hunger, hence an interesting situation.

The snarl of the Wildcat and the warwhoop of the Brave will eclipse all other local affairs when the two teams lineup tonight, blood in their eyes, fight in their blood, and nothing but smart football and a victory in their minds.

MEMBERS OF O. U. BACKFIELD

Above are pictured some members of Ottawa University backfield who will be seen in action against the Wildcats. Knapper, fullback, a triple threat man, has been attracting some favorable attention, especially on his passing. McPherson has been showing up well this season. Kenneth Senter, all conference back last season, is playing a splendid game at a halfback position. Armstrong is a hard hitting halfback that is hard to stop. Bill Gray, stellar halfback will not play due to injuries received in the Wesleyan game. Smith is one of the peppiest quarterbacks in the conference and no doubt will see action in the game.

BAKER SONGS AND YELLS

A SONG OF BAKER
A song of Baker and her love so true
Comes wafted to our ears and thrills us thru
and thru,
While bells of all her victories do ring
We'll answer back by rising to sing.

CHORUS:
Hail old Baker, Rah! Rah! Rah!
Our Alma Mater thou art loyal, brave and true
Thy spirit guarding while we journey on We'll always wear the Orange and yell for old B. U.

—Edith Bideau.

BAKER WE LOVE YOU
(Tune: Santa Lucia)
None know you but to praise
Such is your glory;
And we raise our voices high with the old story;
We will be ever true
To your ideals and you.
Baker, we love you,
Baker, we love you.
Your standards we'll uphold
With hands made ready;
You gave us more than gold
Lives strong and steady.
So we will sing of you
Baker, our mother true.
Baker, we love you,
Baker, we love you.

WILDCATS HOPE FOR VICTORY
the only touchdown of the game before the contest was fairly under way. The tilt ended 6 to 0 in favor of the Swedes.

Twice during the game, the home team muffed chances to score through errors in judgment and erratic charging. The Baker eleven seemed to lose its machine like precision and was unable to capitalize on its breaks.

In all but the final quarter, the Wildcats outfought and outgained the giant Swedes and were a constant threat to the Bethany crew. Once Cookson was off for a touchdown, only to be called back for stepping out of bounds. However, Baker's scoring punch was missing and the game ended with the ball deep in Orange territory.

The contests this season have served to uncover several outstanding players in the Wildcat personnel. The scrappiest of them all is Carl Spear who looms big for all-conference honors this year. His accurate passing from center and sterling offensive and defensive work is drawing favorable comments from sport writers all over the state.

Charles Pike has distinguished himself in the backfield with his hard driving and excellent defensive work. His playing brings back shades of Elton Peterson, all-conference blocking star of a few years ago.

With these men and memories of their recent defeat at the hands of Bethany, the Wildcats are set to give Ottawa the fiercest of battles in tonight's clash.
